

[e1] 'Property entails commitment' is one of the tenets of our social order.

[e2] Everyone should be able to get the utmost profit from his or her property.

[e3] A fixing of rent prices according to the market alone, however, will lead to a further division of society.

[e4] The rich and poor live in different neighbourhoods.

[e5] A constant increase in rent upon a change of tenants hence cannot be desired by society.
